

ABSTRACT

A method and apparatus for providing customized information to a customer. The invention enables a provider to provide customized information in the form of summaries, analysis and stories, that has been determined to be useful to the customer. The customer may receive the customized information from the provider in a variety of ways, including via a customized information portal, an email, a facsimile, etc.

10650427-054804